

September 13, 2023 Bible Jam
Discussion/Review/Homework

For September 20, 2023

Home Study for 9/20:

- Write about two of the questions abobelowve that speak to you to share with the group.
- Read Philippians twice – once without the outline. What did you notice? What questions occur to you. Anything about Paul jump out?
- Any questions or observations in general that you have?

List Of Questions/Items for Comment

Faith.

“Love God; in love with God”

“Believe Jesus; believe in Jesus”

To begin each day to know that God is most important to me in my life;
To remember that. How?

How I wish I could talk to God and/or Jesus– and have God and/or Jesus talk back to me.

Where do Scriptures come into my understanding or relationship with my Higher Power?

How or does God “inform or inspire us” through our scriptures?

What happens to that inspirational process with old, very old texts?

What are we supposed to do with others who just don't believe.

Why do we gather?

Who taught us what we are supposed to believe?
Who taught those who taught us...
What's the meaning of that as we go forward.

What have you taught others about God, Jesus, Spirit and what you believe in relation to the teachings we study?

Do we oversimplify the texts and their meanings?

What is it you have that you would like others to learn?
How might you do that?

What – if anything – you have been taught, would you like to un-learn or un-know? What would that require of you, of others?

Is saying you have “faith” enough – to dismiss all these questions and others like them?

What is faith? What is belief?
What is the difference – to you? After all, you are a teacher of these things. If you were to teach it today, what might you teach?

Is it our nature to be unsure?

Do we really even want to think, pray, swim about these things?

Current Schedule

September Dates:	(Wednesdays)	9/13, 9/20, 9/27
October Dates:	(Wednesdays)	10/4, 10/11, 10/18, 10/25
November Dates:	(Wednesdays)	11/1, 11/8, 11/29
December Dates:	(Wednesdays)	12/6, 12/13, 12/20 (?)

Christmas is on a Monday this year.
